Enter Primo (we call it LINCCWeb 2.0)

- One Primo installation for CCLA
- CCLA manages Primo for the 28 institutions
  - Publishing from Aleph
  - OAI harvesting
  - Customizations
- 13 servers to accommodate 3 environments
  - “prod”, “preprod”: 1 BE, 2 FE, 3 SE each
  - “test”: all in one

How to configure?

- What data to include?
  - Aleph catalog, published to Primo
    - Everyone agreed on this!
  - Google books (Michigan collection)
  - MetaLib
  - Digital material
  - SFX, MetaLib knowledge bases

How to configure?

- How many search “tabs”?
  - Include all searchable data together?
  - Separate tab for each type of data?
  - What data can/should be searched together?

What to do?

- Advisory committee (librarians)
- Feedback (librarians)
- Focus groups (students)
- Usability studies (students)

By far, greatest amount of interaction was with librarians – not with students

Our Starting Point

- Two tabs
  - Books and More
    - Aleph catalog, published to Primo
  - Articles
    - MetaLib

New search look and display of results

The screenshot displays the Primo by Ex Libris search interface for Miami Dade College. The browser window shows the URL http://primo.lincweb.org:1701/primo\_library/libweb/action/search.do?fbg=bdum=true&vid=FLCC1600. The search results are for the query 'cats', sorted by Relevance. The results list includes:

- 1. The cats (Book) by Time-Life Films, New York: Time-Life Films c1976. Available in LINCCWeb.
- 2. Does, cats & kids (Video) by Wayne L. Hunthausen, Chicago, Ill.: Donald Manelli & Associates c1996. Checked out.
- 3. The cat who saw stars (Book) by Lilian Jackson Braun, New York: Jove Books 2000. 2 versions in English published between 1999-2000. Available in LINCCWeb.

Annotations on the image include:

- Two tabs: A red circle highlights the 'Books & more' and 'Articles' tabs at the top of the search area.
- Facets on the right!!: A red circle highlights the 'Refine My Results' section on the right side of the page, which allows users to narrow results by topic, creator, and collection.

Next configuration

- Three tabs
  - Books and More
    - Aleph catalog, published to Primo
  - Articles and More
    - MetaLib
  - Images and Digital Collections
    - OAI harvested metadata – Florida material
    - Google books (harvested from Michigan collection)

Reflections

- We have learned a lot about configuring and customizing Primo
- Can't please everyone
- Who is our customer? (librarian or student?)
- ...

Our current developmental focus

1. Seek more student input; continue work to make LINCCWeb 2.0 (Primo) relevant for students
2. Embed LINCC services within institutional portals through single sign-on
3. Expand the access via mobile devices

Example – Embed in institution systems

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the PantherWeb student portal. The page header includes the college name and navigation links. A 'Quick Links' section contains several options, with 'Library' circled in red and a red arrow pointing to it from the left. Other sections include 'My Details' with student information, 'My Schedule' with a dropdown menu, and 'My Fees and Costs' with a table of charges.
