2017 IGeLU CONFERENCE, ST. PETERSBURG

CALL FOR PRESENTATIONS

One of the great benefits of IGeLU membership and annual conference attendance is the sharing of user experiences within the user community, generating ideas and learning innovative practices.
User presentations are a significant contribution and help create a program that is more than just about ExLibris products - it's about how they are used and who uses them!

IGeLU would be delighted to receive your proposals for presentations for its 12th annual conference at St. Petersburg, Russia on 10-13 September 2017. Information and links are on the IGeLU website http://www.igelu.org/ and the conference website: http://igelu2017.nlr.ru

EXTENDED DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION: 1 May 2017
TARGET FOR ACCEPTANCE: 1June 2017

Topics: Proposals may cover any of the ExLibris, the interactions between them, and their interoperation with other systems. We are interested in users' experiences of Alma; Aleph and ARC; Voyager; Discovery Solutions (Primo, Primo Central Index, MetaLib, MetaLib+); SFX and bX; Verde and UStat; DigiTool and Rosetta, Leganto, CampusM, Intota, Summon, SIPX, 360 link.

Proposals may also cover topics that relate to the wider development of library and information systems within the context of ExLibris products, e.g.:

- Innovative use of products
- Integration of products with each other or with external systems
- Innovation in interfaces: accessible, mobile, something completely different?
- Experiences with new products or the latest release of current ones
- Migration aspects (e.g. migration to Alma)
- ExLibris hosted/cloud solution - how is it working for you; how has it changed your work?
- Authentication and authorization, e.g., PDS, Single Sign On, Shibboleth
- Optimizing systems and maximizing resources
- Knowledge base related experience
- Consortia issues
- Follow up on ideas from last year's meeting:
