Introduction

Copyrights Statements

Example one (without obtrusive copyrights)

Example two (with obtrusive copyrights)

Introduction

Introduction

- Copyrights Statements are used to display copyright information to a user either

    1. Optionally via a link to the copyright statement while viewing the digital object (non-obtrusive)

    2. Automatically before displaying the digital object (obtrusive)

- Therefore, by using the obtrusive copyright statement we are forcing the user to view the copyright.

- See also Configuring Copyrights Statements – Digital

Copyrights Statements

Copyrights Statements

- The Copyrights Statements works as follows:

- The institution defines one or more Copyrights Statements.

- A Copyright Statement can then be applied to an access rights policy.

- If a Copyrights Statement is applied to an access rights policy, then

  - If "Obtrusive Copyrights" is not checked the end user will see an indication that there is a copyright and when viewing the object will have an option to view the Copyright Statement.

  - If "Obtrusive Copyrights" is checked the end user will automatically see the Copyright Statement before viewing the object and need to click "close" to view the object

Copyrights Statements

- We will now do two examples:

1. In the first example we will attribute a Copyright Statement which is not obtrusive to an access rights policy

2. In the second example we will attribute a Copyright Statement which is obtrusive to an access rights policy

- In both cases we will view the digital object which uses the above access rights policy in Primo

Copyrights Statements

- The Copyrights Statements are added to the Access Rights Policy in the "Copyrights" field.

This is where the Copyright Statement will be applied in the access rights policy.

Copyrights Statements

- Copyrights Statements are accessed at "Configuration > Fulfillment > Copyright Management > Copyrights Statements - Digital"

Copyrights Statements

- In the Boilerplate Copyrights Statements it is possible to change the "Obtrusive" checkbox and the Watermark, but not the Name, URI or Content.

The "Obtrusive" checkbox and the Watermark can be changed in the Boilerplate Copyrights Statements

Copyrights Statements

- This is the screen which appears when adding a new Copyright Statement

Copyrights Statements

- We have defined a new Copyright Statement called "The non-obtrusive YILIS Institute copyright".

- This is non-obtrusive because the "Obtrusive" checkbox is not checked

Copyrights Statements

- We have also defined a new Copyright Statement called "The obtrusive YILIS Institute copyright".

- This is obtrusive because the "Obtrusive" checkbox is checked

Copyrights Statements

- Here is the text we have added for the "content" in both Copyrights Statements

Example one (without obtrusive copyrights)

Example one (without obtrusive copyrights)

- Now we will attribute the Copyright Statement "The non-obtrusive YILIS Institute copyright" to the access rights policy "Viewable only to logged in user"

Example one (without obtrusive copyrights)

- The access rights policy "Viewable only to logged in user" is attributed to digital representation for title "Prunus dulcis photographed 20200315"

Example one (without obtrusive copyrights)

- Now a user will view title "Prunus dulcis photographed 20200315" in Primo using the Alma Viewer

Example two (with obtrusive copyrights)

Example two (with obtrusive copyrights)

- Now in title "Prunus dulcis photographed 20200315" we will still use access rights policy "Viewable only to logged in user".

- However, we will change the access rights policy to use "The obtrusive YILIS Institute copyright" instead of "The non-obtrusive YILIS Institute copyright".

- This will allow us to clearly see the difference between "Obtrusive" and "Non-Obtrusive"

Example two (with obtrusive copyrights)

- Access rights policy "Viewable only to logged in user" now has "The obtrusive YILIS Institute copyright".

Example two (with obtrusive copyrights)
